Dear colleagues,

The subjects covered in this issue of the Journal of Comprehensive Surgery are diverse and mirror the changing surgical landscape.

Our collection of distinctive case studies provides insights by sharing clinical experiences that not only spark discussion but also deepen our comprehension of the complex nature of surgical operations.

We examine the urgent problems related to gastrointestinal bleeding this time. We closely examine the literature to offer a perspective that can assist you in making knowledgeable therapeutic decisions in this intricate field.

We also examine contentious surgical topics, such as talks about congenital breast deformities. To make sure that our publication continues to be a strong forum for important discourse in the surgical community, it all comes down to accepting different points of view.

Feel free to peruse through this issue. Each article contributes a piece to our journey towards excellence in surgical practices.

Best regards,

Assoc. Prof. Alparslan KOÇ M.D.
